ABSTRACT

This directory provides an easy-to-use listing of development resources for Idaho community leaders, business owners, and rural development practitioners. The main section lists agencies and associations relevant to small business and community development, and includes contact information. Some entries also include a brief description. Similar entries are grouped by region of the state and may feature a regional map. The directory also contains a subject index with the following categories: agriculture, arts/humanities, business development, business finance, community development, community services, economic development, education (including college and university programs), environment, health, historic preservation, housing, infrastructure, international trade, planning/growth management, recreation and tourism, reference (general information), rural development, technology/engineering, transportation, tribes, utilities, and workforce. ABOUT THIS DIRECTORY

Purpose

Our intent for this resource directory was to produce an easy-to-use directory that helps community leaders, business owners, and rural practitioners reach the right person more quickly. We want Idahoans involved in community and small business development, especially those in rural communities, to have greater access to important resources.

COLLEGE AND UNIVERSITY PROGRAMS

Each college and university has a program for community outreach in economic development and/or physical planning and design. These programs are especially helpful in community assessment, economic analysis, project feasibility studies, survey research, and leadership training.

Idaho's six regional vocational-technical schools can provide information on customized training, industry specific upgrade training, independent business and agribusiness management training, entry/re-entry training, and training for displaced workers. (See also "SMALL BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT CENTERS, IDAHO" and "IDAHO DEPARTMENT OF LABOR.")

DIVISION OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT (IDC)

The Division of Community Development manages the Idaho Community Development Block Grant Program. The program offers grants for economic development projects, senior citizen centers, community utilities and facilities, and various types of housing projects. The Division of Community Development also provides a resource directory for infrastructure improvement called: "The Advantage in Infrastructure Financing." The directory is designed to help communities coordinate funding sources for infrastructure projects such as sewer, water, streets, and fire stations. The Advantage directory provides more program details than this directory and is recommended for infrastructure improvement planning.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION, US DEPT OF COMMERCE (EDA)

The EDA provides grants to public entities for economic planning, technical assistance, revolving loan funds, and public works infrastructure. Public entities use the funds to help local economies and to create new jobs by helping private businesses expand and diversify. The Economic Development Districts (listed below) and the Indian tribes receive EDA grants. These planning districts and the tribes are very knowledgeable about EDA programs, which are provided through an economic development representative who serves Idaho. (See also, "ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT DISTRICTS.")

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT DISTRICTS (EDD)

These regional organizations provide planning assistance, economic analysis, grant writing assistance, and information on various economic development programs and loan funds. Economic Development Districts also help existing businesses analyze their business expansion opportunities, as well as assist communities in all aspects of attracting new business and industry. They also provide census data and EDA regional revolving loan fund financing. These organizations are also known as Planning Districts, Councils of Government, and Regional Planning Organizations. Some function as area offices on Aging, Private Industry Councils, Certified Development Corporations, or Regional Transportation Planning Offices. (See also, "CERTIFIED DEVELOPMENT CORPORATIONS," "ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION" and "PRIVATE INDUSTRY COUNCILS".)

NORTHWEST AREA FOUNDATION

MISSION: The Northwest Area Foundation seeks to help communities most in need create positive futures- economically, ecologically, and socially. To implement the mission, the foundation will help communities work toward a balanced system that will reduce poverty; stimulate economic growth; sustain the natural environment; and develop effective institutions, relationships, and individuals. FOUNDATION PROGRAMS: The Foundation does not accept grant proposals. One hundred percent of the Foundation's resources will be devoted to supporting its mission through three programs: Community Ventures: Over the next five years, the Foundation will identify approximately 10 communities in which to work intensively. Its commitment to each community will be long-term, as much as 10 years or longer. Investments in these community partnerships will total approximately $150 million over the next decade. Community Connections: The Foundation also will make available an array of shorter-term services, programs, and small grants to an additional number of communities. These will be consistent with the Foundation's new mission. Investments in these activities will total approximately $25 million over the next decade. Community Horizons: Recognizing the dilemma of rural communities where both population and opportunity have been declining for decades, the Foundation will help selected communities develop and retain teams of leaders who can help chart the future. This program, which will be fully operational in three to five years, will total approximately $25 million over the next decade. APPLICATION PROCEDURES: There are no guidelines or applications for these programs. To use Foundation resources most effectively as well as to save communities from investing time and effort in applying for a very limited number of partnerships, the Foundation will select partner communities based on its own research.

RURAL COMMUNITY ASSISTANCE CORPORATION (RCAC)

http://www.rcac.org

Established in 1978, RCAC provides a wide range of housing and community development services. These services increase the availability of safe and affordable housing: improve water, watewater and solid waste managment; build the capacity of local officials and community-based organizations; and develop the knowledge base of the rural public through education, publications and training. RCAC serves the rural communities of 12 western states. RCAC publishes two major periodicals- PACIFIC MOUNTAIN NETWORK NEWS, and the PACIFIC MOUNTAIN REVIEW. These publications are provided free of charge to our network of partners throughout Idaho.

TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT, IDAHO (ITD)

Six district offices provide information on ITD construction plans and on grant programs for state and federal highways, urban and rural road funds, safety projects, Federal Lands Program, bridge replacement and rehabilitation, and congestion mitigation/air quality control. The Transportation Enhancement program is also available to communities through the Federal Intermodal Surface Transportation Act (ISTEA). This program funds the following types of projects:

- Facilities for pedestrians and bicyclists, and safety and educational activities for bicyclists and pedestrians
- Acquiring scenic easements and scenic or historic sites
- Scenic and historic highway programs
- Landscaping or beautifying scenery
- Preserving historic transportation buildings and facilities
- Preserving abandoned railway corridors
- Controlling and removing outdoor advertising
- Archaeological planning and research
- Mitigating water pollution due to highway runoff
- Mitigation to address vehicle-caused wildlife mortality while maintaining habitat connectivity
- Establishment of transportation museums

For more information regarding the planning process and matching fund requirements for any of the programs listed above, contact the district engineer nearest you.

US HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

http://www.hud.gov/local/boi/

HUD has a wide array of programs to help people buy homes, to create affordable rental housing, to spur community and economic development, and to enforce fair housing laws. In every HUD office, there is a staff of Community Builders who can answer your questions and work with you in any aspect of HUD's mission. Community Builders can help communities solve problems and they can help individuals understand how to get an FHA mortgage or become a neighborhood organizer. HUD invites you to call, e-mail, or visit our office to talk with a Community Builder about how HUD can help you.

WESTERN RURAL DEVELOPMENT CENTER (WRDC)

The WRDC is one of four regional centers established in 1971 to promote regional rural development research. The centers address issues facing rural communities that are often multi-state in scope and that require faculties from several disciplines to resolve. The Western Center works with the states of Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming. The WRDC's mission is "to strengthen rural families, communities and businesses by facilitating collaborative research and educational outreach in the western region."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND DISCLAIMER

This resource directory was made possible through funding support from the Idaho Department of Labor Idaho Department of Commerce, the US Small Business Administration, and the Idaho Rural Partnership. An advisory committee composed of Bob Ford of the Idaho Department of Commerce, Tom Bergdoll of the Small Business Administration, Jim Hogge of the Idaho Small Business Development Centers, and Dick Gardner of the Idaho Rural Partnership, provided sound guidance in the development of this document and deserve thanks. However, the credit for this new directory belongs primarily to Dawn Foster and Lynne Tolk, graduate assistants for IRP from Boise State University. Dawn's positive energy and drive powered a substantial revision of the old directory, while Lynne was the creative force in transferring the document into IRP's new membership database. Their contributions to IRP and this document are considerable and much appreciated. Any errors and omissions remain the responsibility of the Idaho Rural Partnership. Readers should be aware that organization staff and addresses are subject to continuous change.
